500 to Appear In May Fiesta Next Wednesday

Annual May Fete On Front Campus to Be Most Pretentious Affair Attempted In Years—Public Is Invited.

At four-thirty o'clock, Wednesday, May 23, Gladys Somerville, queen of the May and her maids of honor, Lucile Sturm, Mary Fields, Sue Hankins, Hesterlynn Shipp and Alyce Hastings will be showered with the gifts of the earth by goddesses representing its resources, at the annual May Fete of the College.

Herbert Dieterich, Dick Lamkin, and Sarah Caldwell will be the trainbearers for the queen. Francis Heifman, Dorothy Lee Montgomery, Hatty Mae Castello, Jonn Gillam, Beverly Blagg, Marylin Martin, Wanda Bickett, and Phyllis Jean Price will be the flower girls.

The Fete this year will be the most pretentious Maytime affair to be given at the College for a good many years. More than five hundred students and pupils of the Maryville schools will participate in the event. Much work is being done on the costumes, dancing, stage effects and settings.

The Fete is set for a most appropriate time of the day as the afternoon sun is gliding towards the western horizon. The campus is blooming out now in all its spring splendor and will afford a most picturesque setting for the affair.

The general public, student body and faculty are invited to the Fete. The queen throne will be directly in front of the main building and the dances will be given before her.

A garden with bees, butterflies, flowers and a fountain, will be the culmination of part one of the pageant. A mass band drill in school colors will be the outstanding feature of the second part followed by an English ribbon dance.

The finale will be the winding of the pole by College girls.

The coronation dance will be given by Mary Henderson and Mary Joe Dreyer.

The goddesses are Wilma Staples, Pauline Walker, Edith Moore, Hazel Sullivan, Vada Olier, and Mary Goodpasture.

The Garland Dance is to be given by the College high school. The dancers will be: Estelle Martin, Leona Mae Shell, Opal Cooper, Faye Swaney, Roberta Willhoyte, Augusta Vert, Catherine Moore, Golda Berkenholz, Retha Faye Logan, Margaret Komer, Marie Horn, Vert White, Wilma Lewis, Lula Timpkins, Rebecca Shell, Helen (Continued on Page Two)

"Pat" Monk Sings in Marion Talley Contest

Pascal Monk, baritone voice student of the College Conservatory of Music here, went to Kansas City last week and competed with forty others for the Marion Talley music scholarships. The scholarship was won by Carl Dows, baritone from Topeka, Kansas who sang the aria, "Credo," from "Othello." Monk's selection was the prologue from "Pagliacci" by Leoncavallo.

Christine Goff, a graduate of S. T. C. who is studying voice in Kansas City was another of the entries.

Lucile Airy to Colorado.

Lucile Airy, B. S., '24, now teaching in Omaha will be assistant to Miss Tesse Degan, registrar, at the Adams State Teachers College of Alamosa, Colorado, during the summer school.

Miss Airy will be at home the week end of June 8, before going to Colorado.

Psychology 30 classes have just finished their experiment in writing German script, and have now begun to analyze the lesson to be found in such a complex function in this type of an experiment. The term papers on this experiment are due May 25.

Bearcats Lose Debate; Cape Wins State Cup

Maryville Loses To Springfield and Kirksville—Cape Girardeau Gains
Decision Over Warrensburg Here.

The Bearcat forensic teams lost their two debates to Springfield and Kirksville last week in the round robin debate in the Missouri State Teachers College Association. All of the teachers colleges of Missouri held two debates last week. Maryville debated Springfield at Warrensburg and Kirksville at Cape Girardeau.

The Cape Girardeau teams emerged victors from the contests and won the Guy Allison cup having had possession of it for three years. In that time they have won five debates out of six in the Association and this year's victories gives them permanent possession of the cup.

Gerald Carroll and Fred Smith, accompanied by Mr. Metzler, represented S. T. C. at Warrensburg, and Leland Medsker and Clyde Rowland, accompanied by Miss Criswell, represented Northwest Missouri at Cape Girardeau. Cape Girardeau forensic team was the victor in the debate with Warrensburg which was held in the S. T. C. auditorium, Monday, May 14. The entire student body attended the debate, all classes being closed for that purpose. It was a debate well worth this action, too.

Miss Doris Mabrey and Hunter McKay, the Cape Girardeau team, upheld the affirmative. H. H. Edwards and Wallace Cooper defended the negative for Warrensburg. The judges of the debate were Miss Dow, Miss Bogle, Mr. Foster, Mr. Wilson and Mr. Cook, faculty members of the Maryville S. T. C.

The debate was very spirited and several new points were given. McKay of Cape Girardeau carried his side of the proof with ability not often seen. His organization, delivery and proof were all good. Miss Mabrey succeeded in turning the old standby of the negatives to her cause, that is the question of the Monroe Doctrine. She developed the idea that non-intervention and not intervention would preserve the policy.

Both teams did good work and the student body profited by attending the debate.

Bertha Pence, former student, now teaching home economics in King City, will spend the summer with her family at Liberty, Mo.

Mary B. Frank, former sixty-hour student, who was operated on for appendicitis last week, has been taken to her home at King City.

Faculties of Mo. S. T. C.s Coming Here for Parley

Invitations Issued to Instructors of Other Teachers Colleges. To Come
Here May 25 and 26—Plan to Perfect Organization.

The faculty of the College here will be host to the faculty members of the other four Missouri Teachers Colleges at a general conference and informal meeting to be held here next Friday and Saturday, May 25 and 26, Mr. Kinnaird, chairman of the faculty council announced this week. Invitations have been sent out to the faculty members of the other colleges.

The purpose of this movement is to establish an organization composed of all faculty members of the Missouri Teachers Colleges and enable the teachers to get acquainted with others in their field and to visit the work being done elsewhere.

The invited faculty members will arrive Friday, May 25th. An informal get-together of all the representatives will be held in the afternoon and then dinner will be served to them and our Maryville faculty at Residence Hall. They will attend the Graduate Voice Recital of Vernon Barrett Friday evening. No doubt, many of them will be guests in the home of the Maryville faculty members.

On Saturday morning the guests will visit the respective departments in which they are most interested. Problems peculiar to the departments will be discussed after which an inspection of the plant will be made.

It is expected that all the faculties will take luncheon together Saturday noon and a short general program will be given.

Saturday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock a general meeting of all representatives will be held at which time organization will be formed, date set for annual meeting, the program arranged for next year, preliminary discussion on such things as curriculum of Teachers' Colleges, etc.

Dinner will be served at Country Club Saturday night after which the out-of-town faculty members will be guests of our faculty at the Senior play.

Summer Plans Out For College High

A complete schedule of regular courses will be offered in the College High School during the summer session, Mr. Phillips, chairman of the education department announced this week. Unit courses will be offered in American history, physical education, agriculture, general science, American literature, and world history, in addition to the regular courses that are offered during the school year, providing as many as eight students ask for the course.

Registration in the College High School will be held June 5 and students will be enrolled from 8 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the evening. The incidental fee for the High School is five dollars. Additional information concerning the summer session may be obtained from Mr. Phillips or Miss Margaret Franken.

Rising to Leon, Iowa

Summer Term Class Schedule, Posted

The program of the classes for the summer term has been completed and posted outside and to the west of the entrance to the general office.

After an extensive study of some three or four weeks a final arrangement was agreed upon by the committee on programs and the schedule was posted the first of this week.

So far no real difficulties have been encountered by those planning their courses for the coming quarter. Those having serious conflicts in their classes are urged to report them before the end of this quarter in-so far as possible. If such a report is made, it should be dated, neatly made and legible, and signed with your name. The report should include the conflict and other courses you desire to take.

Car Into Ditch; Mr. Lamkin Gets Clavicle Broken

President of S. T. C. Suffers Other Slight Injuries While Returning From Commencement Address at Helena.

President Lamkin suffered a fractured collar bone, a cut over his left eyebrow, and a slight wound on his foot early Tuesday morning of this week when his Buick sedan slipped off the concrete and turned over in a ditch on Highway No. 71, about two miles south of Maryville. Wes Bagley of the College farm, who was with Mr. Lamkin sustained only a minor scratch on his foot.

President Lamkin had gone to Helena, in Andrew County to give a commencement address and was on his way home when the accident happened. His car was coming north down the hill just south of the Pastime stables when his right front wheel went off the concrete onto the dirt shoulder of the road. The sharp turn of the steering wheel to bring the car back on the wet paving whipped it around and caused it to land in the ditch on the east side of the road.

Mr. Lamkin and Bagley walked to Maryville and had a garage tow the Lamkin car to town. Mr. Lamkin was then taken to the St. Francis Hospital where he underwent an X-ray examination to ascertain the extent of his injuries. He is now resting well at his home on the campus.

Mr. Lamkin was to have spoken at Camden Point, May 15, Burlington Junction, May 16, and Galt, May 17, but Mr. Eek filled his engagement at Camden Point, and Reverend Dewar at Galt. His engagement at Burlington Junction was cancelled.

The dining table was arranged with a beautiful centerpiece of wild crab apple blossoms, pale iris, and pink tulips. The cool evening permitted fires in the fireplaces both in the upstairs and downstairs living rooms.

Punch was served, and those assisting in the upstairs living room were Dean Barnard, Miss Bowman and Miss James. Those assisting in the dining room were: Mrs. Eek, Mrs. Kinnaird, Miss Dykes, and Mrs. Ford.

Brilliant Array Of Stage Stars In Senior Play

Cream of College Dramatic Talent Showing Much Promise In Shakespeare's Comedy, "Twelfth Night" To Be Given May 26.

"The Twelfth Night" one of Shakespeare's best comedies will be presented by the Senior Class of the Teachers College on Saturday night, the 26th of this month. The best talent in the class has been chosen for the cast and three members of the Senior Class, who have been active in public speaking and debate, are in leading parts. Gerald Carroll, Leland Medsker and Fred Smith are the ones who have represented the College during the past year in forensic contests.

Marvin Westfall and Sam Urban have two of the leading parts in the comedy and under the able direction of Miss Dow are bringing in so many laughs that the other members of the cast are kept in constant laughter by their funny antics. There is hardly a moment that they are on the stage that one or the other is not doing something amusing.

Each member of the cast is well chosen for his part. Mary Goodpasture and Mary Fields have the leading feminine roles. Miss Goodpasture impersonates a boy in most of the play and certainly makes as charming and pleasing a lad as one would ever meet. Being dressed as a boy, however, does not keep her from falling in love with a duke.

Mary Fields, who was recently chosen Senior Class queen, is a countess and the courtly manner of running the servants and her two troublesome fun makers, gives her every opportunity to bring out latent abilities which she has shown in the rehearsals.

A Shakespearean play without a court fool would be incomplete and in this production of the Twelfth Night the role is ably taken by Margaret Quinlan.

She brings out all of the laughs that a fool is supposed to and her native ability as a fun maker is allowed free range and makes the part complete. The saying that it takes a smart person to act like a fool, probably explains the main reason for the success of Miss Quinlan.

Besides having a fine cast for the play, no expense is being spared in providing all of the best and finest scenery for this production. The costumes, which will be furnished by Theo. Liben of Omaha, will be complete in all respects so that it is to be expected that the "Twelfth Night" will be remembered by those who are fortunate enough to attend.

The general admission charge will be fifty cents with the opportunity to get reserved seats at Kuchs Bros. after the 23rd of this month.

College Will Be Host to Mothers On Wed., May 23

Girls Will Entertain Their Mothers On Campus During May Fete Next Week
—Luncheon At Residence Hall.

Mother's day and Dad's day are coming to be recognized events in many of the colleges throughout the country. Last autumn, during the football season, the boys of the College had as their guests the "Dads."

It is now planned that the girls shall entertain their Mother's on the day of the May Fete, Wednesday, May 23. Personally conducted visits to the various buildings on the campus, a luncheon at the Residence Hall, and attendance at the May Fete, where seats will be reserved for them, is the general plan of the committee in charge.

Those assisting Dean Barnard on the entertainment committee are: Pauline Andrews, Helen Henkins, Vera Fattig, Alberta Jones, Estelle Campbell, Viola Cox, Mary Margaret Meyer, Leola Miller, Mary Goodpasture, Helen Fouts, Lois Mae Dakan, Ruth Fields, Helen White, Grace Gallatin, Lorraine Harris, Noreen White, Pauline Halker, Bernice Cox, and Mabel Long.

It is hoped that a large number of Mothers will find it possible to be the guests of the College on this date.

Girl Track Stars To Have Meet Soon

"The track teams have been chosen and the interclass meet will be held as soon as the weather permits," said Miss Barton, of the women's physical education department, who has charge of the track work. They expected to have it this week but because of rainy weather no definite time has been set.

The Freshman team is composed of Lois Carroll, Opal Hall, Estelle Campbell, Perminio Davis, Juanita Marsh, Helen Slagle and Caroline Edwards.

The other team consists of Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors. They are Martha Brandt, Pauline Green, Margaret Curran, Sarrahah Davis, Kathleen Jones, Ruth England, Gertrude Dale and Virginia Dean.

College Farm Sells Four Pigs for $120

A 342-pound average was made by four Poland China fall pigs sold by the College on the St. Joseph market May 14. They brought $9.25 per hundred making a total of $120.85. The pigs were saved back, when the rest of the thirty-nine head were sold, to use in the judging contest which was held the last part of April. The remainder of the thirty-nine pigs was sold from the College Farm, Friday, March 23. Two hundred-sixty-six pounds was the average weight of the seven month pigs, and they sold for $7.90 per hundred. The total amount received for them was $693.25. The spring pigs, which are to take the place of the fall pigs, are doing very well.

COLLEGE OATH
"We will never bring disgrace to this college by any act of cowardice or dishonesty. We will fight for the ideals and sacred things of the college. We will never and obey the college laws and do our best to make a like respect and reverence in others. We will transmit this College to those who come after us, greater, better and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us."

Boosting College Tuition Further.

The idea that after buildings and other accommodations have been provided, students should pay the entire cost of higher education, persists in university circles, despite vigorous attacks.

The idea, of course, is at variance with theories more or less prevalent since medieval times and at irreconcilable variance with the theory on which the state universities came into being, but that alone is no reason for rejecting it. How much it varies from the ideas that control in secondary education may, however, be pointed out. Academics were once on about the same basis as many colleges and universities are now. That is, a part of the cost had to be derived from the resources of the student or his family with the remainder met by endowments, and in some academies the entire cost, as is now suggested in the case of university education.

Gradually, however, costs were permitted until free academic training is now not only the rule with a comparatively few private schools as the only exceptions, but education is compulsory during the usual ages of academic schooling and text-books are in most cases supplied free. With secondary education free and the world clamoring for an even more specialized training than secondary education affords, why should not the aim be to make higher education just as free, instead of making it more costly to the student?

Dr. Trevor Arnett, trustee of Chicago University and formerly its financial manager, is one of the latest to urge publicly that the costs, or at least greater costs than are now customary, should be placed on student bodies. His argument that most students are preparing for some remunerative employment, instead of aiming at public service or cultural benefits, might apply in some degree to professional schools, but even there quality of student opportunity and of student status is important and his proposed system of student loans and scholarships for those of meager means would contribute to neither, but rather to inequality in both. His own survey of 200 institutions, showing that tuition had increased 77.3 per cent since 1920, indicates a need for such dispositions by the benevolent as may reduce, rather than increase, student fees.

At Bennington, Vt., a woman's college is planned with student fees placed at such a figure as will meet all current expenses. A fund of $4,000,000 is called for, but it is to be devoted to plant and grounds and such initial provision as is possible for loan funds and scholarships. It is said to be the first institution whose finances are placed on such a basis, but as it will not be in readiness before 1930, several years must elapse before trustworthy results can be expected.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

FRIENDSHIP

Few things come in this world without an effort on your part. You cannot sit back and fold your hands and let your thoughts go wool-gathering and expect to find your heart's desire showering down around you.

Whatever you wish most you acquire by working for it; by looking ahead and holding yourself in readiness and willingness to work hard when that time comes and then by a persistency which carries you through to final achievement.

A man that has friends must show himself friendly and willing to help others in case of a financial stress or misfortune and the results of this must be that no matter how indifferent he may have felt toward you in the first place, no matter how ignorant he may have been of your friendliness toward him, he cannot but respond with the esteem and liking you wish for him.

Students Make Test of Worth in College

The college may be considered as a laboratory in which a student is tested and in which he may test himself. The purpose of the test is the determining of his rating as compared with that of his associates, and its application is perhaps broader than may be at first apparent.

First there are physical comparisons. Men may be strong, virile and manly, or weak, puny and effeminate. These differences have some bearing on the future of the individual, and a college system including physical examination and physical education can do much to remedy defects. A good system of physical education will improve greatly the general physical condition of the average individual. Any individual can, if he will, keep himself fit, add to the years of his life, and improve his disposition by properly regulated exercise. He has an opportunity then to improve his physical standards.

The intellectual development naturally is stressed heavily in college life and properly so since knowledge power and power is a sense that physical strength cannot replace. Any subject taught represents an accumulation of the best thoughts of the best thinkers in that line for a period of some hundred years. Each one holds enough to demand all of a man's time for all of his life without exhausting that to be a thinker, he needs a variety of facts, conclusions, and laws as a base of his thinking. In addition, he has the opportunity to find a line of thought that interests and inspires him. If such a field is found, it may well prove to be his life work, or if not that a strong permanent secondary interest. There is an additional value in study, in doing one's work and mastering the subject. The world can always use that type and the student who does not do this in his college work is practicing a habit of inefficiency that he must later throw off or fail.

One can also test one's social capabilities. Life must be lived with people and the college offers many of the same type that life does, demands many of life's adjustments. To maintain one's own standards, to accomplish one's aims, to succeed in college, mean a development of the effort, the interest, the perseverance and the personality which lead to success in life. Surely it is of value to compare one's self socially with one's neighbor and to know definitely how and why results are obtained.

There is an ability to test one's moral fibre. College life is not free from temptation, it is not free from bad influences. There is the opportunity to develop the sturdy integrity and the rugged honesty that characterizes big men. There is over and over again the opportunity to say "No" definitely and conclusively and just as often perhaps there is the pressing need of its being said, both for one's own sake and for that of the second party.

There is an opportunity to study life and existence in relation to ourselves. Why are we here? Where did man come from, and where does he go from here? Is life worth while? Philosophy and religion give us satisfactory answers to these questions as it is possible for us to get.

All of these values are present in the curriculum of an ordinary college. All have a value to the student, and his reaction to them will in a large measure determine what he will be ten, twenty, or thirty years from now.

Physical fitness adds years and wholesomeness to a man's life, knowledge is power mighty enough to have evolved our present civilization. Social relations can not be avoided, moral questions must be answered by an individual for himself. Religion and philosophy afford the only answers for the "why" of existence.

The important question, of course is, "What are you, as a student, doing about it?" Are you playing, and do you intend to play through life as long as Father and Mother can or will permit it? Do you want to do something worth while with your life and are you getting ready to do it? Are you a small boy looking for Allah's lamp which will bring you what you want without any great effort on your part, or are you mature enough to realize that what you get out of college depends entirely on what you put into it? The value is there. It is only for you to want it and get it.

Poems

The following poems come from the class in English 111—in advanced compositions:

Le Printemps

"The Springtime," (After Charles D'Orleans.)
The old earth's worn and tattered gown,
Is thrown aside at last,
The cold and rain have past,
The sun's warm rays drip down.
Each living thing cries out to me,
In silent tongue or loud
A promise of the things to be,
The gifts of our one God.

—Alice Dodds.

"Our Old Witch."

In our elm tree lives a big old witch
Who howls and screeches on windy nights;
She may be poor and she may be rich
But all her clothes are an awful sight.
She's a ragged old thing with a scraggly skirt,
But I'll just bet she has some gold
Way down deep in the roots and dirt.
That's been there till it's old and old.
And when the wind comes sneakin' around
A teasin' her and fluttin' her old rags;
The thing that he says with every sound,
"Old Witch, give me your money bags."
Then she tries to scare him away,
And I scooch 'way down deep in bed
Wishin' the wind didn't like to play
So fierce, he scares me almost dead.
And then the wind, he's awful strong—
Just laughs and tosses her all about
Then skips away to croon a song
To baby birds, while witches pout.
—Alice Dodds.

"What, Cleopatra, you are not weary of being Egypt's Queen, are you?"
"Weary! Don't ask!"
—Cornell Widow.

That's Nothing

"What did you get on that quiz?"
"Zero, but that's nothing for me."

Jenkins Making Fine Record in Andrew Co.

Cecil Jenkins, B. S. 27 County Superintendent of schools of Andrew County, has made a very creditable showing the past year as indicated by a double page story in a recent issue of the Savannah Reporter.

Mr. Jenkins has added five schools to the first class list in Andrew County. This is a creditable showing for any county superintendent and especially for Mr. Jenkins as this is his first year as county superintendent. Andrew County now has a total of seventeen first class schools due to the efforts of Mr. Jenkins.

Mr. Jenkins received his degree from the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College in 1927 and in the same year was elected superintendent of schools of Andrew County. Before assuming his present position Mr. Jenkins taught one year in the Long Corner school, a rural school near Bolekow, he was two years at the Fleming school near Rosendale and three years principal of the grade schools at Rea.

Most of the teachers under Mr. Jenkins have attended the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College. These people are: Miss Callie Fisher, teacher of the Radical school; Leo Lance, teacher of the Long Corner school; Miss Hattie Stanton of the Clay Center school; Miss Francis Bonewitz teacher of the Murphy school; Miss Ida Phillips, Mt. A CUB'S LAMENT

I've been assigned a "beat" To cover every week, And given a lot of tips On news for me to seek.

But now I'm feeling meek, For I've made so many slips And I haven't got the "check" To thaw out frozen lips.

Oh, why can't people speak, When they have some news to tell? They're not as dumb as that, I know darn good an' well Friends, now listen to me, I heard the Editor say,

"You gotta turn in 'copy' Or you'll receive no pay!" Or you would be kind And help me get my pay, Just tell me about your news, Then I'll be on my way.

LeHews, Grundy Co., Family of Teachers

Perhaps some of the students of the State Teachers College and especially the graduates remember the members of the Le Hew family who attended the College here a few years ago.

The following interesting article was taken from a Trenton paper concerning this family of which nearly all are teachers:

Miss Lorraine LeHew has been elected teacher of the Crawford school west of Tindall. Miss LeHew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank LeHew, on route 1, is the fourth member of a set of cousins who received their first instruction in teaching from the teachers training department of the Trenton high school. She is the ninth and the last LeHew to be graduated from the high school. Entering the Teacher's College at Maryville in June she will make the seventh of the group continuing their education in colleges and universities.

The location and position of the other teacher members follows:

Miss Kasele LeHew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. LeHew, route 4, who has had work in the Maryville College, has recently been re-elected for her third consecutive term at the Mt. Pleasant school.

Miss Edith LeHew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will LeHew on route 6, a graduate of the Missouri University in 1926, has been employed as home economics teacher at Shelbyville, Mo., and was re-elected recently for her third time with an increase in salary. She will do graduate work in the University of Chicago this summer.

Clelle T. LeHew, brother of Lorraine, who was graduated from the Teachers College at Maryville in 1924, was re-elected Friday, April 13 (the same day of his sister's election at Crawford) for his third consecutive term as English instructor in the high school at Ely, Nevada, with an increase in salary.

In July, Mr. LeHew will begin his third summer working on his master's degree in the Columbia University, New York City.

When asked why they had chosen the teacher's profession, one of the group replied, "There have been teachers in the family always—it is a profession which offers an honest living and makes better boys and girls, just the same as the profession of farming which keeps our parents tillers of the soil."

The family of the elder LeHew's has contributed two teachers—Miss Nira Le Hew, Trenton, and Mrs. Jessie Close, St. Joseph.

Y. W. Leadership Beam Passes to Lucille Qualls

The beam which has led the officers of Y. W. through this year was passed on the new officers at the Y. W. C. A. meeting Tuesday. The candle of the new officers was lighted from those of the old to represent the passing on of their duties.

Last Friday evening the old cabinet with the new officers retreated to the park and set up camp. Friday evening was spent in the various amusements and Saturday morning in discussion of the accomplishments of the past year and in making plans for the future.

This was followed by a swim in the pool at the gym and a picnic lunch together after which they broke camp.

The new officers are: Lucille Qualls, president; Dorothy McCord, vice-president; Mildred Stuessi, secretary; Una Moore, treasurer.

Miss Brumbaugh, the assistant College librarian, accompanied them.

"Twelfth Night" Given at S. T. C. By 1912 Seniors

Saturday evening, May 26, the 1923 Seniors of S. T. C. will present Shakespeare's comedy, "Twelfth Night." And it is rather a known fact that these upperclass actors are rather putting themselves on the back for staging such a well-known play as one of "Bill" Shakespeare's classics. It has been suggested by them that it would be fine for the Senior Class each year to follow the precedent set by the 1923 class and give a Shakespearean play.

The giving of a Shakespearean play by the Seniors is a commendable undertaking and just credit is due them. But for the sake of their expanding horizons it is well for them to know that "Twelfth Night" has been given by a Senior Class here before—just sixteen years ago to be exact.

"Twelfth Night" was given in 1912, according to Hubert Garrett, superintendent of Quitman, who was a member of the cast. Other members of the cast included Fred Lewis and Ed Goodspeed of Maryville, and Lona Perrin, formerly of Maryville. The play was given in the old Empire Theatre and was coached by the public speaking department of the College. Miss Edna Randall of the faculty directed the play.

Paul Stone at Joplin

Paul Stone, B. S. '25 is now teaching English and Debate in the Joplin high school, and is also sponsor of the Gavel and Quill Literary Society, according to a letter received by Miss Dykes.

Paul writes that he has charge of an intramural debating tournament with thirty-two teams taking part. The question being debated is the McNary-Hougen Farm Bill.

The city newspaper gives a trophy cup to the winners.

Paul attended the Literary School of the University of Illinois last summer, and expects to go there this summer. He intends to enter Library work.

Training School News

On Friday afternoon, May 11, the children of the primary room entertained their mothers at school in honor of Mother's Day which was to occur the following Sunday.

The program was typical of the work that is actually being done in the school room and was as follows:

Dialogue—"Mother"—First Grade.
Language Story—Claude Hays—second grade.

Nature Study Talk—Geraldine Wells.
Violin Solo—Miss Vera Smith.

—third grade.
Violin Solo—Miss Vera Smith.

Song—"A Surprise"—first grade.
Song—"Busy Folks"—first, second and third grades.

Song—"Goodbye, Mother"—second and third grades.

Reading Reports—Vivian Jean Hopkins, Marguerite Thorp, Frances Porter, Edna Hale—third grade.

Dramatization—"Three Billy Goats Gruff"—first grade.

Playing the game of "Pins" as in number class—second grade.

Talk on Health—Jean Myers—third grade.

Poem—"The Swing"—Mary Louise

Hartness—first grade.

Distribution of Gifts—Marcelene Wiley.

Robert Powell and John Lewis Hartness—helpers.

The presentation of these "surprise gifts" was indeed very amusing. As Marcelene opened a big, paper sack and began displaying the hidden treasures, the children were as much interested in the contents of the huge sack as were the mother. The children were not told what the gifts were until just before the Mother's arrived, and had only had the pleasure of getting a glimpse at the gift which was being given to their mothers.

The teachers had sent for sample packages of Corn Flakes, Grape Nuts, Bran, Postum Cereal, and Instant Postum from the Postum Company corporation; a package of Aunt Jemima pancake flour, from the Quaker Oats Company; samples of Bon Ami, Kellogg's "Pep," and Pabst Cereals from the other companies; at least twenty recipes and cook books from various firms, also pamphlets too numerous to mention. The Knox Gelatin and tooth paste samples have been shipped and will be distributed later.

After presentation of the gifts, fruit punch was served and a small bouquet of sweet peas was given to each mother. All of the mothers with the exception of one, who sent her regret, were present, and also several visitors. Those present were: Mrs. Hartness, Mrs. Healy and mother, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Higgins and little daughter, Mrs. McArthur, Mrs. New, Mrs. Powell, Mrs. Lyle and Edna Hale's two brothers and one sister, Mrs. C. E. Wells, Mrs. Jamison, Mrs. Myers, Mrs. Porter, Mrs. Wells, Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Thorpe, and Mrs. Wiley and sister.

Book Review

An interesting and favorable review and criticism of the book, "Student's use in leisure time of activities learned in physical education in State Teachers Colleges," written by Dr. Saxman, head of the women's physical education in the College, appeared in the April issue of the Mind and Body, a monthly journal of Physical Education.

The criticism was written by John C. Kieffer. In closing his review Mr. Kieffer characterized the recommendations in the book as "precise and amply supported by the evidence submitted." He continued by saying "They should appeal to teachers of physical education in general and particularly so to those in colleges. The organization of the material while necessarily complicated is thorough and logical. Although limited in scope the book is a valuable addition to a phrase of the literature which has been more or less neglected."

This is a book concerning the problem of education of students in State Colleges for the use of leisure time. "It is the evaluation of certain physical activities for students leisure time use." The date on which the discussion and recommendations are based "were secured from student bodies and directors of physical education departments in state teachers colleges."

In order to get the information needed in this study, the questionnaire method was employed. Samples of the questionnaires used are given at the end of the book as appendices. They are comprehensive, short, and understandable.

The arrangement of the material centers around five main topics:

1. Partial factors in the matter of students leisure hours.
2. Amount and frequency of provision for recreation.
3. Leisure time use of activities learned in physical education.

4. Students' reaction to a given list of recognized leisure time activities.

Summary and recommendations. Under each of these main topics there are several sub-topics embracing a study and discussion of the findings in the questionnaires. Each topic is briefly summarized at the end of its chapter. Tables and charts are used liberally to present the volume of statistics resulting from this type of study.

The selection of the questions and the arrangement of them in the questionnaire, the large number of cases involved, the number and variety of institutions from which information was gathered, the analysis of the problem and subsequent classification of the material, and the thoroughness of treatment, all testify to the sound technique and procedure used in this work.

The findings in general are very interesting to a person engaged in teaching physical education and particularly so to the teacher of physical education in colleges and normal schools. Unless the reader has some specific problem in which special information is sought, there is a tendency in going through the book to avoid the tedious work of plowing through the tables of figures and turn directly to the summaries and final recommendations.

Chapter IV is particularly interesting to those teaching physical education in elementary and secondary schools. It discusses the findings in twenty city and six state surveys of physical education in the grades and high school. The author explains that "the mean ages at which students learned each of the activities studied, were the ages at which many boys and girls are in either the elementary or high schools so that it was felt that study of state and city surveys of public school systems might give an added understanding of factors which control the use in leisure time of the activities learned in physical education." Undoubtedly the physical education activities learned by the students were affected by the same programs and methods brought out in the surveys studied, but too much importance should not be attached to this factor as influencing what they can do or would like to do today.

In the discussion of the "Programs of Physical Education" it is pointed out that "The significant factor in regard to the types of materials used, is the trend toward a change in emphasis from formal gymnastics to the more natural activities of childhood." This smacks of the confusion and misunderstanding of the method and content. Probably it would be less of exaggeration to say that the trend has been toward a greater change in method than in content.

The final recommendations are precise and amply supported by the evidence submitted. They should appeal to teachers of physical education in general and particularly so to those in colleges. The organization of the material while necessarily complicated is thorough and logical. Although limited in scope the book is a valuable addition to a phase of the literature which has been more or less neglected.—John C. Kieffer.

Miss Lair Speaks to Social Science Club

Miss Lair, Spanish instructor, spoke to the Social Science Club on the subject of Spain and its people Thursday evening, May 10, in Social Hall. Miss Lair's address was made doubly forceful by her appearance in Spanish costume. The costume was similar to that of the aristocratic class of Spain, the most remarkable features of which were the Mantilla, a large black lace head-dress extending down over the shoulders, and a large Spanish comb. Because of her association with the Spanish people while in Spain for a period of two years Miss Lair was able to make her address particularly interesting.

Following the holding of a short open forum Hazel Hawkins gave a reading, "Green Stockings." Several of the short course students responded to the president's request for short talks.

After a brief social period accompanied by the serving of light refreshments the meeting was dismissed.

The club was interested to note the increasing attendance of members and it is hoped that the students of the coming term will add to the progress and growth of the club.

Children Display Ability at Violin

Seven children, violin pupils of Miss Devorak, violin instructor at the conservatory of music, gave a recital in the music room of the College, Monday afternoon. The musicians gained the approval of the audience of about fifty persons.

The children ranged from four to ten years of age some being so small that miniature violins were used. All played without a copy of music and all seemed perfectly at ease, while playing. Those taking part in the recital were: Sarah Caldwell, Betty Chaves, Charlotte Withington, Robert Curfman, Betty Lee Carter, Sarah Catherine Thorp, and Paul Person.

Dr. Green Talks to Y. M. C. A. on Health

"There are two types of persons with poor health," Dr. Green told members of the Y. M. C. A. in a talk at their meeting Wednesday evening, May 9. "One type is born with a weak constitution while the other is born with a strong physical body but who do not respect the health rules. Consequently it tears down their bodies until they become a degenerated individual, physically, mentally, morally and socially."

"At one time it was thought that the Y. M. C. A. was an organization of men with weak bodies," he said, "but that does not prevail today for it has been realized that much more can be accomplished by men with strong bodies."

College Zoo Is Increasing; Has 3 New Specimens

Keep your eye on the biology laboratory and you may see more interesting specimens. The latest ones have been a baby horned owl and a craw-fish and brown bat.

The horned owl was found in the grove west of the College building and, as it had fallen from its nest, wherein were five other owls, and was brought to the laboratory for observation. It was covered with dark gray down but had that characteristic expression of wisdom from its large eyes. This bird should be of great interest since at the present time there is a prevalent question of whether we should condemn this bird as among the destructive class since it kills many little chicks when the opportunity affords, or whether we should class it among the beneficial because it destroys so many insects and small mammals.

The craw-fish are more or less common to all, but few people avail themselves of the opportunity to examine and observe the nature of them. By such observation one is enabled to see the value, also the detriment they are to the farmer.

A brown bat is the latest addition to the collection of specimens in our biology laboratory this week. It was captured by a student of entomology and left in the laboratory Monday in a little wire cage.

It is the only mammal that has power of flight and this fact combined with the fact that it looks like a large brown mouse has won for it the name of "flutter-mouse." It suspends itself head down, clinging from the top of the cage in which it was placed, with its hind feet which are good for little else.

Its wings, which are tough membranous structures on light bony frames, were folded to its sides; sometimes bats wrap these wings about themselves. Bats are generally known in all parts of the world but are not extensively distributed throughout this part of the country.
